THOUSAND HEARD THE GOVERNOR

He is Given a Warm Reception By the People of Loudoun County.

The Speaker Says That He is Only After Mr. Martin's Record.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

LEESBURG, VA., July 27 .- The appear ance of Governor Montague at Leesburg this afternoon was the occasion of a large gathering of representative citizens from all sections of Loudoun county. A conservative estimate of the attendance is one thousand persons, who listened to the Governor's address for two hours and a executive committee/who introduced Governor Montague.

The applause that greeted the Governor was flattering, and indicated the sincerity of his welcome by the voters of this county. After courteous reference to his auditors, Governor Montague said, in denying any personal attacks on Senator Martin, that he wished to say no unkind word about any one, and that he had been as self-restrained and as tolerant as any "red-haired" man could well be; that he had never said an unkind word about the junior senator personally, but that as a public man his public record as a public servant is a legitimate subject for discussion and criticism, and rather than to establish the precedent of suppressing the right of such discussion in a legitimate way, he would forego a thousand seats in the United States Senate.

Is Public Property.

Is Public Property.

He attacked the public record of Mr. Martin, because it was public property, and as such the junior senator was amenable to his constituency for his acts as senatof. Governor Montague followed his introduction by a clear and convincing explanation of the efforts of the Democratic party in the past to have adopted the primary system of nominations for senator and State officials. Such a system, he said, was essential to divest great aggregations of wealth of their influence in legislative affairs, and to reinvest the people at large with the direct control of their public servants; that of all the Federal officers, only the representative in Congress was voted for directly, and that if the people are competent to select their congressmen, they are equally as competent to select their senators. The influences, said the Governor, which put men in power, determine and control their services when in power. If put men the few; if men are put in power by the people at large, to them they are amenable, and to them will they be true and faithfull.

For Clean Politics. Is Public Property.

For Clean Politics.

For Clean Politics.

The primary system, said the Governor, was, favored in the interests of clean politics; in the interest of the voter thirty miles from the courthouse, so that his influence would be as potent as the little ring at the courthouse, and this primary ballot, if honestly cast and honestly counted, will restore political equality throughout Virginia.

Referring to Mr. Martin's advocacy of the primary, Mr. Montague said he never favored it until after its adoption, and fintil it was a live question, and that now he favors it with a lick of approval and two of disapproval; that after its adoption he half-heartedly supported it, or rather accepted it, in a negative sort of way.

On the subject of improvements as to roads and schools, Mr. Montague said he was in accord with every feasible means to better them, but, unlike the junior senator, whose support of these reforms was like the promises of reform made by a man in immediate contemplation of marriage.

Governor Explains.

Mr. Montague very satisfactorily explained his position on vetoing the first appropriation bill for Confederate soldiers; the Lee statue bill, and other acts of his administration as Governor, which had been attacked by the system of newspapers allied against him. After refuting the attacks made upon him, in conclusion he said:

"I have no friends, no favorites, no machine-like organization, no system of newspapers, no leadership to advance my candidacy in the interests of pure politics. Learns in Ludwin is a many supporters where and in this vicinity.

newspapers, no leadership to accommended the candidacy in the interests of pure politics. I come to Loudoun in a plain way, advocating and supporting a primary system of nominations, the first inauxurated in the history of Virginia, will will restore to each voter political equality, and I assure the citizens of Loudoun that if elected I will be amenable to the people of this Commonwealth and not to a coterie of select friends."

Farmer and Break Up Gambling.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

AMEDIN C. H., VA., July 27.—A considerable number of farmers from nearly all parts of the county assembled here to-day to hear an address by Mr. H. B. Sherman, of Indiana, an eloquent exponent of equal rights for farmers and national organizer for the American Secretar of Equity.

nent of equal rights for farmers and national organizer for the American Society of Equity.

Mr. Y. E. Booker, of Morven, already a member and local organizer, introduced the speaker in a few well chosen remarks, saying that he was satisfied that grand results must flow from the organization when its work was understood and its system adopted by the farmers.

Mr. Sherman delivered a most interesting address, to which careful attention was paid. He said the object and purpose was to benefit the farmers, and not to injure others; that they were entitled to just and fair prices for what they furnished all the capital and labor to produce; they were not unfriendly to buyers; they needed them; but they propose to and do already ascertain a knowledge of the supplies raised and the demand for them, and with this knowledge for their products and keep the gamblers and speculators from fixing prices below the cost of production.

This gambling system is to be destroyed, but bona fide buyers are sought and welcomed from every source.

"Who is to change this system but farmers?" he asked; "and farmers are already doing it in vast humbers, both in and out of the organization, which is now 690,000 strong, and has organizations in every State but four, and in Canada, South America and Australia."

now 699,000 strong, and has organizations in every State but four, and in Canada, South America and Australia."

A semi-monthly paper is issued to every member, and gives full information of the workings of the organization and the state of the markets everywhere.

At the close of the address Mr. Stacy cited several instances of seiling by the method of organization that had brought great gain to the producers—things that were taking place here in our own State and county.

After the meeting arrangements were started to establish a local union here, and one near Beaver Pond. These will make five unions in this county, and good results are looked for.

ASHLAND, VA., July 27 .- The proliminary construction work on athe Gould nary construction work on a the Goulo clectric line between Richmond and Ashland has been temporarily suspended, owing to resistance of several property owners. A committee has been appointed by the Business Men's Association of Ashland to look into the matter, wait upon the different parties and to report at a special meeting of the association next week. The road will follow a line parallel with the Richmond Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad on the east side from Richmond. It is the general opinion here that several pieces of property will be condemned at an early date rather than arbitrate the matter any further. Ground will be broken next week for the new school building here. The town council at its last meeting decided to issue bonds at 5 per cent. for an additional sum of $2.000, in order to enable the School Board to carry out its plans for a suitable building. This amount together with the $2.500, previously provided for by a loan, and tunds already in hand will bring the amount up to the required amount of $5.000, Mr. William Perrin has been selected as the contractor. GREENSBORO, July 27.—At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen last night an ordinance requiring the Western Union and the Postal Telegraph Company to place their wires on the business streets of the city underground, was adopted by a vole of 4 to 2. The measure was streenuously opposed by the telegraph companies. Some months ago a similar ordinance was proposed for both the telephone and telegraph companies it was adopted, compelling the telephone company to go underground, and that work has just been completed. The telegraph companies were let out then. Now there is a resolution to repaye South Elm Street, and the telegraph ordinance was revived on the ground that if the wires were placed underground now, it would not necessitate the tearing up of the street for some future enactment of the kind.
